A SPLENDID TREAT AWAITS WASHINGTON'S POOR KIDDIES

The Washington Herald Wants Them as Its Guests
Next Saturday.

By JULIA CHANDLER MANZ.

The Washington Herald has invited 1,000 deserving children to be its guests on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the Columbia Theater to travel with Lyman H. Howe around the world.

Will you help us make these children of Washington happy?

There are several ways that you can do this.

In the first place, we want to fill the theater Saturday morning to its capacity with the poor and crippled little ones of our city.

You can help us do this by spreading the news of our Easter party wherever you go. Tell every one you see about it, so that the glad tidings will spread all over the city and reach every child within its limits.

Some of them may have missed seeing the notice of the free coupon to be issued daily in The Washington Herald's "Page for Every Woman" until every seat has been given away. Some of them may not see anything about it until it is too late to secure a seat, or even standing room for this trip with Lyman Howe around the world.

To you who are accustomed to the luxuries of a large city, to whom amusement and recreation are every day affairs, who ride to and from business in the thousands of automobiles which traverse the streets of Washington; who last night after night, our theaters packed with audiences, and to whom theatrical spectacles are a matter of course, to be enjoyed as one enjoys the sun and the flowers, to you the missing of an opportunity like this by some boy or girl who may never have another such chance throughout their entire lives may seem a matter of little consequence.

But when for a moment and consider the matter.

Many of these children who are invited to attend the Saturday morning programme of the Howe travel festival have never been in a theater in all their lives before and may never have a chance to go again.

Certainly we must afford to have any one of them miss this fine opportunity to see all parts of the world just because we did not tell them about it.

And if you have an automobile, large or small, that you can spare Saturday morning, to make several little hearts beat with joy, call up the editor of The Herald's "Page for Every Woman" and say that it will be at The Washington Herald's new office Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, and help us to give these children who are invited to travel with Lyman Howe around the world, when they have returned from their wonderful trip with Mr. Howe around the world, take them to their homes again.

In these two ways every man and woman in Washington can help in a good deed that will leave with us a bright recollection for all time.

FORMERLY LIVED IN CAPITAL.

Dr. Arthur C. Fitch Stricken in Porto Bello, Brazil.

Dr. Arthur C. Fitch, who died at Porto Bello, Brazil, last Thursday, had been a resident of this city for many years previous to his departure for Brazil, two years ago. He was born in Orange County, N. Y., and was forty-four years of age.

Dr. Fitch was graduated from the school of pharmacy of George Washington University about ten years ago, and subsequently took the medical course in the same institution, graduating in 1902. He was a thirty-second degree Mason. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Butler Fitch; a sister, Mrs. P. F. Pressey, and a brother, Henry M. Fitch.

Death Due to Pneumonia.

That death was caused by pneumonia was the verdict of the coroner yesterday after an autopsy on the body of Stephen Ford, colored, an employee of the Government Printing Office, who died at his residence yesterday morning. While riding a bicycle near New Jersey avenue in E street on March 25, Ford was struck by an automobile, and it was thought that the accident caused death.

Held for the Grand Jury.

Pleading guilty to a charge of stealing an emerald ring valued at $125 and a bracelet valued at $35, Emma Hesse was yesterday held in $500 bond for the action of the grand jury in the Police Court. The complainant was H. W. Jackson, of 304 Connecticut avenue, by whom Miss Hesse was employed.

FIREBUG COLLINS PUZZLES POLICE

Mania to See Buildings Burn Took Various Turns.

AMBITIONS IN THE HERO LINE

Asserted He Had Strong Desire to Pose as Rescuer and Also That His Fondness for Rides on Fire Apparatus Had Much to Do with His Deeds of Arson.

Whether Thomas J. Collins started the fires to see the engines run or had hopes of being a hero by making rescues is a problem the police will be unable to solve unless Collins decides to help them out. On a number of occasions he has tried to make rescues, it is said, by firemen, but in only one was he successful. In that he demonstrated he had the ability of a hero. This was at a fire in a small frame house in Ninth street southwest, where the woman forgot her six-months old baby, which was lying in a crib. The police say Collins, who was the first on the scene, took his coat, and wrapping it about his head and face, ran into the burning room through flames and brought the baby out.

Another thing that puzzles the police in the speed at which Collins turned in alarm for fires, they say, it was due to this fact that many of the fires were not as disastrous as they might have been had the fires got a good start.

Police Take His Picture.

Collins was taken to police headquarters yesterday morning. He repeated his confession concerning the seventeen fires he started. He was photographed and measured, and later returned to the Ninth precinct. He will be given a hearing in the Police Court this morning on a charge of arson.

Reports that Collins started fires to get rides on the fire apparatus were denied by the officials of the fire department and Chief Wagner last night. The Chief said it was strictly against the fire regulations to permit citizens to ride to a fire. Collins, however, had one ride, it was said. This was when he went into No. 15 Engine House, on March 8 last, and reported a small fire at 34 Ninth street southeast. In this case the captain let him ride so as to show him location of the blaze.

It was developed yesterday that the arrest of Collins was due to Maj. Sylvester, who has personally investigated many of the fires. The police and firemen had noticed Collins at the fires, and commented on the fact. Maj. Sylvester ordered his arrest the next time he was seen at a fire, and held on suspicion. The police of the precinct did not take the initiative because of insufficient evidence, and the major decided to take the step.

BARBOUR SENT TO ASYLUM.

Suffers from Nervousness and May Be Insane.

Elmer R. Barbour, twenty years old, was yesterday committed to the Washington Asylum Hospital for examination as to his sanity, after having been charged in the Police Court with threatening his mother's life and flourishing a razor blade before her face.

Judge Pugh said he considered Barbour mentally incompetent. Barbour was unable to control his hands while testifying, and showed signs of a victim of nervous disease. He looks to be not more than eighteen years old. Mrs. Mary Barbour, his mother, testified her son seemed to be afflicted with a brain or nervous disease, and agreed he should be sent to the asylum.

MAY JOIN HANDS IN GIVING DINNER

Banquet to Congressmen at Willard April 27.

That the Board of Trade and the Chamber of Commerce will join hands in the reception or entertainment each is planning to give to members of the House and Senate is considered highly probable, following the action of the special committee of the Board at a meeting yesterday.

Having received and considered a proposition from President Oyster, of the Chamber of Commerce, that his organization be allowed to join hands with the Board, the committee voted a favorable report on the plan. The report will be considered and final action taken at a meeting of the board of directors of the Board of Trade probably this afternoon.

In the event of a joint Chamber-Board reception and entertainment, it is planned to have addresses of welcome from Gen. Harries, for the Board, and Capt. Oyster, for the Chamber. Other speakers will be the Speaker of the House and the Vice President, and the chairman of the House and Senate District committees.

President Taft also will be invited, and it is understood already has signified his willingness to attend. The reception, which will commence at 8 o'clock, followed by an elaborate buffet supper, will be given at the New Willard, on April 27.

ANACOSTIA.

Holy Week is being observed by Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Anacostia, and St. Teresa's Catholic Church with fitting services. In Emmanuel Church the communion will be celebrated on each morning at 10 o'clock, and tomorrow evening and Thursday evening the Brotherhood of St. Andrew will hold services in the chapel of the edifice. A passion service will be held on Good Friday from 12 until 2 o'clock, and in the evening the Bishop of Washington will visit this chapel to administer confirmation. At this service the choir is to render a portion of Sir John Stainer's "Crucifixion."

Rev. W. B. Curry will preach the sermon in St. Teresa's Church on Thursday night, and on Friday evening "The Way of the Cross" will be recited. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday mornings mass is to be celebrated.

At the Esther Memorial Chapel, at Congress Heights, the first robed choir is to make its appearance on Sunday at 10 o'clock. A pastor service will be held under the direction of Milton J. Phillips, who has had several young people under rehearsal for about three months.

It is announced that the choir of the Garden Memorial Presbyterian Church will render the music at the Government Hospital for the Insane on Sunday afternoon next, under the direction of Edward T. Davis. It is probable the hospital orchestra will assist, under the leadership of Joseph B. Caldwell.

Two important meetings are to be held in this vicinity this week, one being a meeting of the Randle Highlands Citizens' Association, which will take place at the residence of the late Mrs. Randle, and the other a meeting of the Anacostia association, to be held to-morrow evening. Estimates to be submitted to the Commissioners for the consideration of Congress will be the chief topics of the meetings. A special speaker is to be present at the Anacostia association, Thomas C. J. Bally, engineer of bridges of the District, who says to have been present, has advised of his inability to attend.

A meeting of the Ladies' Guild of Emmanuel Episcopal Church was held yesterday afternoon in the parish hall of the church, when final preparations were made for the decorating of the church for Easter Sunday. Easter lilies will form the main decoration, together with palms and ferns.

DRIVERS GET TAGS TO ESCAPE ARREST

District License Law to Be Enforced May 7.

The work of distributing 5,000 "drivers' tags" was started yesterday at the District Building. More than 500 were given out.

While the law requiring these tags has not been enforced, owing to the delay in obtaining the tags, it is said all drivers of business wagons in Washington must obtain licenses by May 7, when active enforcement will start. Advertisements are to be inserted in Washington newspapers, and the police will inform drivers of the law.

A charge of 50 cents is made for each tag, which entitles the holder to obtain one of the white enamel badges. The law requires all drivers of horse-drawn vehicles to have this identification.

H. M. Woodward, permit clerk, who has charge of the work, says the tags will be distributed in three weeks.

DR. PALMER DEAD; FUNERAL PLANS

Celebrated Botanist Stricken at Home Yesterday.

Funeral services for Dr. Edward Palmer, one of the distinguished botanists of America, who died at his residence, 30 Twelfth street southwest, yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, will be conducted by Rev. Patrick Murphy, of Epiphany Chapel, to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence. The burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery. He had no immediate relatives in this country.

Dr. Palmer was an Englishman, having been born January 12, 1831, at Hockwold-cum-Wilton, near Brandon, in the County of Norfolk, England. His father was a professional florist and horticulturist, so that from his earliest childhood his associations were with flowers, shrubs, and trees. Dr. Palmer came to America when eighteen years of age and settled at Cleveland, Ohio.

When the United States government decided to send an expedition to the unknown country of Paraguay, to open the hermit nation of South America to the outside world, young Palmer appeared for a position as collector of natural history specimens. When, in February, 1852, the small sailing vessel, the Water Witch, left the United States for the South American country, it carried upon the ship's roll the name of Edward Palmer.

When the civil war began, Dr. Palmer was connected with the geological survey of California as a collector of specimens, working under the direction of Dr. Cooper, especially on invertebrates of the California seacoast. He came east in 1857, and offered his services to the government as an acting assistant surgeon in the army, and served throughout the war in the West and Southwest.

After the close of the war he was stationed at various army posts in the Southwest.

Dr. Palmer was sent by the Commissioner of Agriculture in March, 1869, on a mission to Arizona and New Mexico to report on the agricultural resources, the commercial products, the climate, and fertility of the soil, and the general habitable features of various localities.

Dr. Palmer in later years was sent by the National Museum on extended travels in the Indian countries and to Southern California and Mexico, where he procured specimens of great value to the United States, which are regarded today by every student of North American botany and ethnology as of real value.
